"Revlooshun"

The Club's latest drama is off to Austria...

Hello 'Festival of Nations' - here comes Sutton Coldfield Movie Makers with "Revlooshun"

The great thing about these club productions is that members can be involved as much as they want to. There are so many jobs to do that everyone's skills are valued. As well as the opportunity for many to take part as actors and/or crew, help is needed in such things as make-up, finding locations and sourcing or making props.

Skills

We all learn from each other, and in the process of making this film we have built upon the skills we were beginning to acquire in the making of "Operation Black Hat".

We have gained a better understanding of the use of sound equipment including boom poles and shotgun mics, and have begun to learn how to use a bank of professional standard LED lights thanks to club member Alan Moore.

The film starred club member Julian Austwick who also conceived most of the ideas in the film. Club chairman Gordon Hunt directed and edited the films. He has had fun (and worked hard) compositing many exciting special effects and creating foley sound.

"Revlooshun" has already had success at a number of competitions:

Winner of the "Chocolate Soldier" competition.

Winner of the Millennium Trophy.

3rd in CEMRIAC Inter-Club competition.

3rd in Southern Heat of North vs South competition.

3rd in Audience vote of Northern Heat of North vs South competition.

New look "Revlooshun"

"Revlooshun" is now even better than it was. Taking into account feedback from judges and audiences, editor

Gordon Hunt has added a new scene and has carried out a number of other editorial changes.

We are so proud of the new version that we have decided to take it to the "Festival of Nations" in Lenzig in Austria.

This international festival, which is being held from 6th to 12th June, attracts around 1000 entries. We have also entered the club film "Operation Black Hat" in the "Festival of Nations".

"Operation Black Hat" was the winner of the North vs South competition in 2012/2013 which is a national competition for films made to a set theme.

A chance to get involved

After the success of "Operation Black Hat", "Revlooshun" was originally made specifically for the North vs South competition. The theme we were working to was "Revolution".

It was an ambitious project with costumes especially made by Fiona Dunn, approximately 20 different locations and around 25 people involved as actors and/or crew including six different members having a hand in the camera work.
